This year the budget calls for an expenditure of $21,175 for school maintenance. All residents of the district interested in the welfare of the school are urged to attend this annual meeting.

—The Enterprise added a great improvement to its equipment last week by installing electric heated metal pots on its two type-setting machines. The metal used in these machines was formerly melted by gasoline burners. This not only does away with danger from fire, but also adds to the rapidity with which a machine can be made ready for operation. Electricity gives a more uniform heat, as these metal pots work automatically under thermostatic control. To our readers this may seem an unimportant improvement, but the cost runs into several hundreds of dollars.

—Daylight saving time went into effect last Sunday at Altamont, in conformity with the resolution passed by the village board, and to make time uniform with the adjoining cities with which our citizens have business relations requiring the use of the new time. The business men are generally observing the new time and the First National Bank has notified its depositors of the change. The Altamont High school went on new time Thursday morning. The D. & H. local trains have been advanced one hour, though running on standard time. The Altamont-Albany bus line uses new time.

—The picture at the Masonic hall Saturday night is entitled "The Lily," a Fox special production. This picture is a version of David Belasco's dramatic stage success. A two-reel comedy entitled "Steeple Chasers" will also be screened. On Tuesday the regular mid-week shows will open with a Warner Bros. special entitled, "Bobbed Hair," with Marie Prevost and Kenneth Harlan in the leading roles. This is a crook mystery drama in which a society girl finds real love and much thrilling adventure in a chase for stolen booty. A two-reel comedy "Fast and Furious" will also be screened on Tuesday night at 8:30, new time.

Northern California A Wonderful Country

Highways will be flooded when the lake is enlarged.

The Red River Lumber Co., is one of the largest in California and controls everything at Westwood, a lumber city, 14 miles east of Chester. They employ 5,000 people and own every house, store and everything. The pay roll is $500,000 every two weeks. Railways run in all directions through the forests to convey logs to the saw mill. Nearly all the mill work is done by steam power; there is an electric plant which is but little used. The machinery goes like clock work and few workmen are needed for the amount of work done. The logs are cleaned by sprays of water as they move up in the building to the saws that make 5,000 revolutions a minute and saw them in lumber of all sizes and shapes; then they revolve chains they move along in their respective places. Most of the saw dust is blown outside, but some is carried with the bark and refuse to the furnace and burned, which makes the power to keep the machinery going. Seven hundred fifty thousand feet of lumber is sawed every 24 hours. The work goes on day and night, with 8 hour shifts. There is a factory nearby where material for boxes of all sizes are prepared and the material is stored and packed for shipment but not put in box form. There is also a cabinet making department and saw-filing department. A saw has to be sharpened every 5 hours. They are very large belt saws most of them having teeth on both sides.

Oroville, the county seat of Butte Co., has a population of 6,000 and is 25 miles south east of Chico on the Sacramento Northern Electric railroad. It has two lumber mills, five olive and 2 orange packing plants. Oroville produces more olive oil than any city in the world. Each year from Tuesday to Saturday during Thanksgiving week the Northern California Orange and Olive exposition is held here. There is a wonderful exhibit and some special entertainment, is given from the stage each evening.

Nine miles from Oroville is Bidwell Bar, where gold was discovered in 1848. Here is the oldest orange tree in Northern California, planted in 1856. The Northern California mines are of gold, silver, copper, platinum and lead.

Counting by two great-uncles, Jacob Moak (who celebrated his 92nd birthday, March 16, 1927) and Sam Moak (who celebrated his 81st birthday, October 6, 1927) with their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and also the descendants of their three brothers, Levi, John and David, the Moak family on the Pacific border now numbers 83.

Established Credit

Hoarding money, being secretive about business affairs, is not necessarily good business. Establishing good banking connection, letting one's record speak for itself over a period of months or years—may be the means to far greater advancement and success—as many men have learned.

When all your business dealings are above board, all transactions a matter of record and verification, then you often have an established credit which makes it possible to carry through plans which would be impossible if you were unknown and your assets only what you were able to produce in cold cash.

Young men—and young women too, should know these facts and start early in their business career to build and establish such credit.

We welcome new accounts and always look upon them as building stones for future developments. Our service on such accounts costs us far more than the immediate returns we receive—all of which is free to the new customer, client or subscriber in any branch of our banking service.
