Co. Hudson-Champlain Committee Report

The number of major contributors whose gifts of $300 or more entitle them to recognition on a memoral plaque in the Henry Hudson planetarium has reached 33, James A. Stiles, finance chairman, announced this week.

Between now and the actual letting of construction contracts some months hence, additions to the list are expected, Mr. Stiles indicated. Ultimately, the full list will be made public.

The project — believed to be the principal permanent memorial to result from the statewide Year of History — is being sponsored by the Albany County Hudson-Champlain committee.

Thus far the committee reports approximately $45,000 raised as against a minimum need of $65,000.

Included among the 33 are three whose major contributions were announced in 1959 — $2,500 from the Albany Felt Company and $2,000 each from the State Bank of Albany and the National Commercial Bank and Trust Company.

Also in the group are sponsors of specific Year of History projects, including the Albany County Council of Veterans, $2,855.62; the Town of Bethlehem Hudson-Champlain committee led by Mrs. Paul Dickinson, $1,200; the Greater Albany Chamber of Commerce, $4,540.04, and the Pageant of Nations Committee under Mrs. I. Watson Betts, Jr., $765.97.

The remaining 26 whose gifts ranged from $300 to $1,000 included individuals, clubs, firms and labor unions.

"By making a gift of $300 or more to the fund, those who were present — and indeed may have participated — in the 350th Hudson-Champlain celebration can have that interest permanetly recorded," Mr. Stiles said.

"It is particularly desired to have well represented those whose firms and families have been identified with Albany during much of its history," he added.

He also expressed the belief that groups in communities other than the Town of Bethlehem would become major contributors.

The executive committee, which also includes David H. Beetle, Josef Yezzi, Mayor Corning, Dr. Albert B. Corey, James L. McHale and Charles L. Mooney is hopeful that the planetarium instrument itself — an item costing $13,000 may be given as a memorial by someone interested in the two objects of commemorating Albany's founding and helping youthful scientists.

The memorial was selected by a sub-committee under Dr. Albert B. Corey, state historian, as something which will be a tribute to the explorers of the apst and an aid and inspiration to the Space Age explorers of the future.

Plans call for the building to be erected and operated by the Dudley Observatory trustees. It will be keyed in the observatory on South Lake Ave. When the project is completed, schools throughout the area will have the unusual opportunity afforded by a combined observatory and planetarium.

Gifts can be sent to the Albany County Hudson-Champlain Committee at is headquarters, 10 South St., Albany. Those who have given amounts under $300 can add to them to secure recognition.

'Quack' Spending

Representative H. R. Gross of Iowa is somewhat vexed about a $50,000 grant to Cornell University to study bird sounds. He feels there's a need for a companion study — of the "anguished sounds of taxpayers."

Noting that the grant for the study came from the National Science Foundation shortly after the House had voted the Foundation $160 million for the fiscal year, Representative Gross snapped:

"Is it too much to hope the day will come when some foundation, richly endowed by Congress, will make a study and record for posterity the anguished sounds of taxpayers when they read how their money is being frittered away."

One such anguished cry comes from an organization representing the taxpayers of New York state, the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey. The Survey echoes Mr. Gross's lament and concludes that far too much of our tax money is spent on projects "strictly for the birds." And that's one bird call we'll go along with.

B-K Central Schools Improvement Group

The executive committee of the Berne-Knox Central Schools Improvement group met recently to evaluate the information sent to Chairman Harry Carry by the N. Y. State Citizens Committee for the Public Schools.

Of paramount interest was the delineation of the talk recently given by Dr. Franklyn S. Barry, superintedment of schools, Cortland, and vice president of the N. Y. State Teachers association, to the first joint meeting of citizens, educators, and school board members at New Paltz, sponsored by the N. Y. Citizens Committee and Mid-Hudson School Boards Institute.

Said Dr. Barry, "I submit that these three requirements are basic to the engineering of any desirable change (in curriculum) at this time:

1. An interested lay public which elects its best people to the board of education.

2. A board of education, well informed, dynamic and demanding.

3. An administration and staff both alert and ambitious."

He continued: "If I were a lay citizen I would:

"Join or form a committee to study the aims and objectives of the local schools. I would want to know if the school program and curriculum were effective reaching toward these goals. I would go about my community urging citizens to give high priority to public education. I would do my best to establish a climate of wide concern for the best possible educational program.

"I would hope to promote some kind of 'massive dialogue' between those in the school and those out in the community.

"If I were a board member I would:

"Streamline board meetings and cut down on administrative detail, so that the board would have time for meetings on the things that go on in the schools.

"Demand a written plan from each principal in every school, of what he plans to do about curriculum change this year.

"Provide for community participation.

"As an administrator I would:

"Expect principals to plan ahead for educational improvement — (building needs, as well as curriculum).

"Plan in the budget for consultants in areas where urgent changes are needed (English, science, reading skills, guidance).

"Use State Education department personnel.

"Set up a schoolwide curriculum committee, school by school, through the system."

This special release, studied by the executive committee, closed with te suggestion that any one of the many points made by Dr. Barry in his address could serve as a basis for group discussion of curriculum responsibilities in every school district. NYSCCPS believes such discussion is necessary to promote the "massive dialogue" needed in every community in the state.

It was the unanimous decision of the executive committee of the local school improvement group that public meetings would be scheduled soon to discuss them. The present alert interest in school matters evident in the Berne-Knox district should be utilized to the fullest to insure a school system second to none in the state.

Is Your Weight Correct?

Before investing in a Bikini this summer you may want to give your figure a rather careful look. Controlling one's weight is not an insurmountable problem. Rather it can mean starting on a lifetime of good eating habits. Perhaps the most difficult part is making up one's mind to change—then following this with persistence and patience.

Cornell bulletin E 329, "How to Control Your Weight," gives suggestions for both gaining and losing weight. Menus are included that can be easily adapted to serve fat, medium, or thin persons at the same table. Single copies of the bulletin are free to residents of the state upon request from the Mailing Room, Stone Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.
